

OBLIVION Mk-X - Origin & Concept

In the year 2198, after centuries of war and escalating robotic arms races, a secret coalition of rogue scientists and ex-military engineers created the ultimate war machine: OBLIVION Mk-X.

Born from forbidden technology and void research, Oblivion was not built to fight battles... it was built to end them.

OBLIVION Mk-X is a titan-class combat mech powered by a singularity core.

Its frame is composed of meta-carbonium plating, resistant to all known types of energy and ballistic weapons.

With a semi-organic spinal reactor channeling raw dimensional energy,

Oblivion is not just a robot, but a walking event horizon.

MAIN WEAPON: VOID SPLITTER

A dimensional cannon that opens rifts in spacetime, pulling enemies into temporary black holes before violently collapsing them.

This weapon bypasses all conventional armor and energy shields.

ABILITY: SINGULARITY SURGE

Temporarily transforms Oblivion into a moving singularity.

Enemies within a 150-meter radius are dragged toward it, slowed drastically, and take continuous damage.

Oblivion becomes invulnerable for 10 seconds during activation.

PURPOSE

Built for final assault missions, Oblivion Mk-X is deployed only when all else fails.

Its appearance on the battlefield signals one thing: total annihilation.

Concept created by: Moreau Alexandre